

Twenty-Third Annual Calvert County Historic Preservation Awards

Preservation Project Award

STEPHEN & JEAN SINCLAIR
for
ROOF REPLACEMENT & BARN
RESTORATION AT CORNHILL

The Sinclairs do a commendable job of maintaining Cornhill, their 18th century house in Calvert County. The cedar roof is just the most recent example. In the past two years they have also undertaken the restoration of a tobacco barn on the property.

Photos, clockwise from top left: New cedar roof on house at Cornhill; Stephen Sinclair with Historic Preservation Award certificate; 1939 photo showing earlier barn repair; Stephen Sinclair in his tobacco barn. (1939 photo courtesy Stephen Sinclair)

Preservation Public Education Award

THE ARCHAEOLOGY CLASS AT HUNTINGTOWN HIGH SCHOOL

Teachers at Huntingtown High School, with the support of the principal, the nurturing of the Social Studies Supervisor and the collaboration and guidance of the education department at Jefferson Patterson Park & Museum have created and implemented an archaeology curriculum. In this class, students learn the importance of the past, how archaeology informs on history, and have an opportunity to think critically and creatively—the hallmarks of a good education.

Recipients, left to right: Branson Wray (teacher, HHS), Kate Dinnel (Education, JPPM), Rick Weber (Principal, HHS), Jeff Cunningham (teacher, HHS), Patricia Samford (Director, MAC Lab), Scott McComb (Social Studies Supervisor, Calvert County Public Schools) Not pictured, Kim Popetz (Administrator of Education, JPPM)

The class visits Sukeek's Cabin Site at JPPM

Students examine ruins at Historic St. Mary's City

Students at Indian Village at JPPM to plan cell-phone tour

Photos at left courtesy Maryland Historical Trust